The sea draws men to it in many ways. Profit and sport have traditionally rewarded adventures with it on the surface. Now the mystery of its depths more and more challenges man's desire to dominate his whole environment. At its simplest this determination to find out what goes on under the ocean is seen in the activities of amateur swimmers and scuba divers. These techniques have been perfected for organized research, and the use of sophisticated devices has been introduced for wider efficiency and greater safety.

In air travel and space flight, man is wholly dependent on his vehicle. With the ocean there is a different relationship. Man uses vehicles, certainly, for ultimate survival, but there's a great deal he can accomplish without being sealed off, in an artificial chamber, from the element in which he is moving. His own body is already a maneuverable and sensitive instrument. And there are now specialized tools to enable scuba divers, for example, not only to explore further, deeper and with greater safety, but also to record what they find.

In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with perfect testing grounds at hand, Rebikoff Underwater Products Inc. produces advanced equipment (the president, Dimitri Rebikoff, is a distinguished oceanographic engineer-scientist). They put out such refinements as an electrically-powered propulsion unit to carry the diver and equipment; this combined with a navigation and control module insures perfect direction finding through the darkest, cloudiest waters. There are photographic systems to use in conjunction with the vehicle, or on their own: floodlights, strobelights, correcting lenses, still, pulse, television and motion picture cameras.

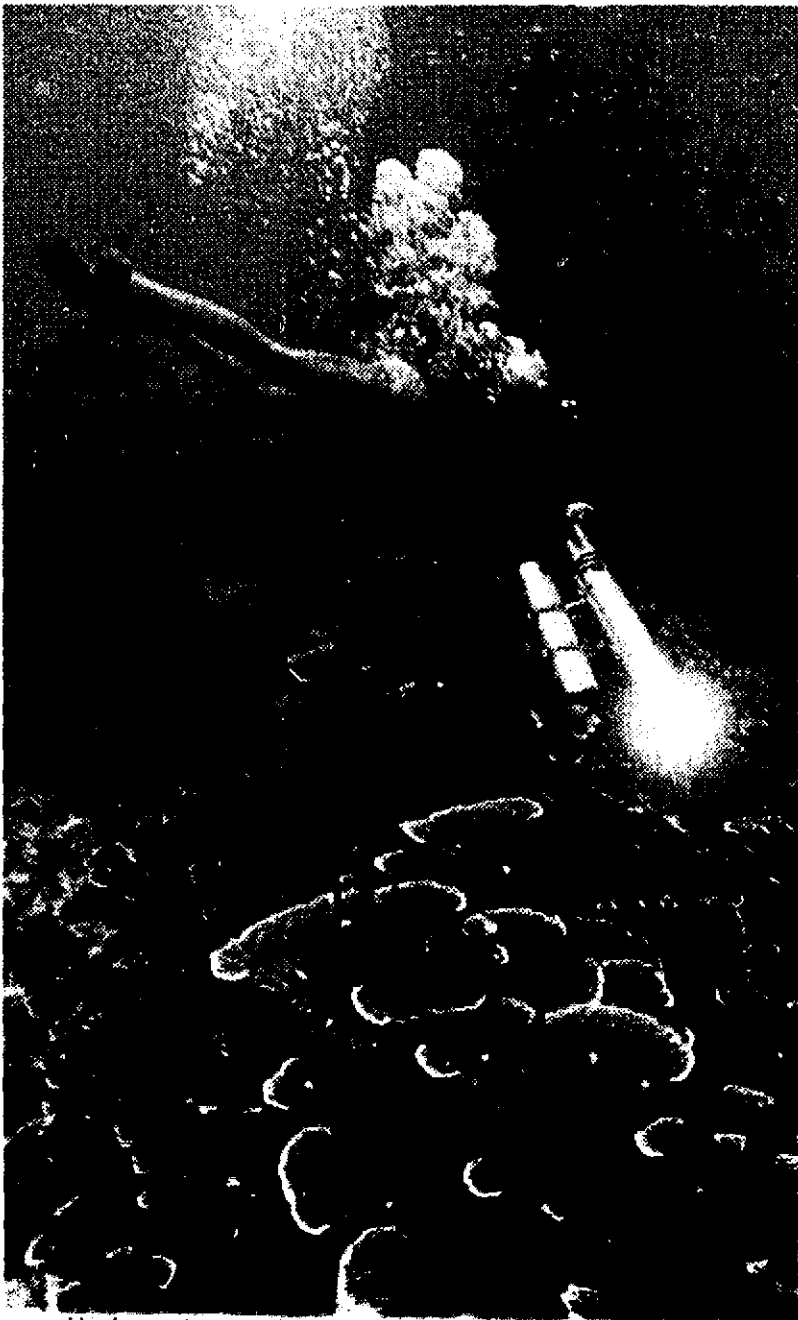

The diver's mission can be the inspection of underwater installations, stereophotogrammetric mapping of the sea floor, the observation and study of marine life, treasure hunting and archeological research, for private, industrial or defense purposes. There are plenty of existing reasons for man to move beneath the ocean's surface. What is intriguing is that there may be so many more reasons which he does not at present even suspect exist. The greatest part of the adventure is what is still unknown.

Glen Picks at Guitars Not Social Sore Spots

Glen Campbell keeps his ideas to himself.

Jean-Claude Killy "But skiing is you."

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Glen Campbell is nobody's man but his own. Glen is old-fashioned: he's patriotic, he cares, and he stands up for what he believes.

Glen is in 50-50 partnership with Tommy Smothers on production of The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour, the new CBS-TV series. But what is on the show reflects Glen's opinions, not Tommy's.

"When I did the summer replacement show, there were some things I didn't agree with," said Glen, "but I told Tommy I'd do them, because he was the boss and I was the employee. But I have also told him that what goes on in this show reflects my views."

Glen's views are basically conservative. "Sure, we've got sore spots in our society," he says, "but you don't irritate them by picking at them. You try to heal them."

"I disagree with much that goes on in politics, but I go vote. I don't think I have the right to put my ideas into the minds of 30 million people."

Handsome Glen looks a decade younger than his 30 years. His two big recording hits, "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," and "Gentle on My Mind," made him a pop star. But he had been an anonymous success before that as a well-paid studio musician. One year he played 586 record dates.

Recently he made his movie debut, costarring with John Wayne in "True Grit."

"I don't know if I am acting," he says. "The part was not that heavy. I'd trot along on a horse and say 'Yes to Duke Wayne. Back home in Arkansas, I used to go pick cotton to get enough money to go see Duke's latest picture. He was my favorite. When I met him, I felt just like a fan asking for his autograph. And I did. I'm Joe Idol anyway.'"

Because immediately after he won three Olympic Gold Medals and proved himself to be the world's best skier, he began showing up on commercials on TV... because he has just started a series on CBS-TV... because he was the subject of an ABC-TV special... and because he was rumored about to launch a screen career— you assume, before meeting Jean-Claude Killy, that he is a shrewd young man, taking full advantage of his Olympic fans.

Then you meet the charming young Frenchman. His TV series is about his love: skiing. He is not going to act. "It was a very important decision," he says. "You can't start like this, at the top, and be a good actor."

He deliberated before accepting the commercials, and he really wants nothing more than to be in his beloved mountains at his home in Val d'Isere, France.

"Skiing," he says in his soft French accent, "it's just fantastic. There is no noise, just the wind. It's a nice feeling."

When he races down the side of a mountain, Jean-Claude reaches speeds of 85 miles per hour. "If it is steep and you fell at that speed, you wouldn't get hurt. If the ground was flat, you could get killed."

The Olympics, he feels, are not a true test of an athlete's ability—"a man's whole career depends on two minutes."

He enjoys many sports, including surfing, sky diving and motor car racing. "Auto racing," he says, "is the most dangerous, and sometimes if you win a race (he won one in competition in Italy), it is the machine that wins. But skiing is you."

He has skied most of the world's famous slopes, many for the CBS series. "I have skied everything except Mount Kilimanjaro," he says. "I will do that next year."

After which they will have to change the spelling to Killymanjaro.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

COULD THESE TWO LETTERS BE RELATED?

Dear Helen: I'm stunned. I hate the guy I love, if that's possible, but I don't think I'll ever trust anyone again.

We went together for two years, and I promised to wait for him when he was in Vietnam. He was so wonderful to me. He was clean and straight and never expected more than was right, even when he was leaving. I thought I knew him through and through. All the time he was fighting, I was true. I wrote to him every day and sent gifts. He wrote every day too. We made plans about marriage.

Then he was badly wounded and sent home early, to a hospital about 3,000 miles away. The first letter I got from him there was very cool, but he DID say he wanted to see me. The second letter was a brush off. He said he was going to live back east where he was having a ball, and I was a good kid who would go far, but let's face it, we just weren't made for each other. So, good-bye. Just like that.

I've been trying to date other fellows, but I feel miserable when they even hold my hand. I hate the world and I hate my former guy, so how can I still love him? Should I just give up and never write to him again? — HURTING off this man you thought you knew so well, read the following letter. It probably isn't from your guy (could co-incidence stretch that far?), but it may encourage you to write one more time, and ask for the real reason behind his break-up.

Dear Helen: I came back from Nam with an injury in my spine. Maybe I'll be okay, but I have a disability discharge, and have to have prolonged treatment. I'm not exactly husband material right now, even though I love my girl.

If I told her about my long hospital bouts, and the uncertainty over my future, I know she'd hop the next plane. But I don't want a nurse. If I can't have a wife, I'd rather she would forget me, as it wouldn't be fair. I love her too much to see her waste her life.

Isn't it better that I tell her I've changed my mind about our marriage? As I see it, this is the only way. She may feel bad for a while, but she won't learn to hate an invalid husband. I'm not being melodramatic. I just want your opinion. — DISABLED VET

Dear Disabled Vet: Read both letters in this column carefully, and then — tell your girl the truth! You'll hurt her far more by lying! — H.

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

FIVE MILLION NOW IN HOME STUDY COURSES: Sixty-five accredited colleges and universities offer correspondence courses for graduation... some toward graduate degrees. Most colleges and universities are liberalizing their "on campus" minimums for a fully accredited degree.

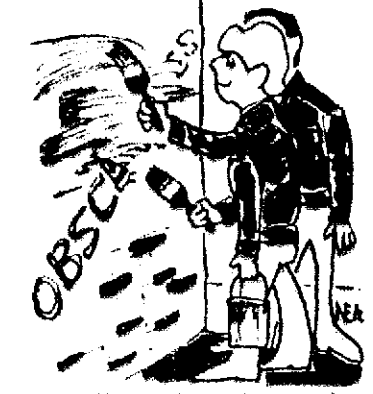

Private correspondence schools are not always acceptable, but studies are being standardized by the National Home Study Council. "Correspondence Study in Colleges and Universities" is available for 50 cents from the National University Extension Association, 900 Silver Spring Ave., Silver Spring, Md. 20910. The National Home Study Council (1601 Eighteenth St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009) has a free booklet on their program.

SKIN DISEASE TOLL: American Academy of Dermatology estimates that treatment of and disability from skin diseases cost Americans $1.5 billion last year. Research reveals that a variety of chemicals in cosmetics, soaps, drugs and even some plant juices can make the skin abnormally sensitive to sunlight. The guilty ingredient can be identified by patch tests in most instances.

SEAT BELT BOOMERANG: Fasten your belt properly! If belts are loose or above the hip bone, high speed collisions can result in horizontal fracture of the spine.

TOOTH REMOVERS: Dental researchers are experimenting with a chemical that loosens the tooth when injected into the holding tissue. The next day the tooth can be removed without pain or bleeding.

GUERRILLAS FOR GOOD: More and more youth gangs are organizing. The object... do good! Many young Americans are tired of the all-bad, do-nothing stereo type of their generation. The "Robin Hood" image seems to add a dimension of fun (and stealth) to their work. Rather than facing legal red tape, the "gang" gets out and does. Obscenities on bridges, walls and cliffs are painted over, dangerous houses are boarded up, obstructions are removed, trash is cleaned up. The "guerrillas" use classified ads to identify their targets, sometimes before they strike, other times after they have completed the mission.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I've been stealing long enough from Tchaikovsky; it's time I paid him back."
The man speaking—in semi-fractured English that is difficult to translate into print—was Russian-born Dimitri Tiomkin, veteran Hollywood composer and now executive producer of the first Russian-American co-production, "Tchaikovsky."

Bald, puckish Tiomkin is the man who delighted the 1954 Academy Award audience when he accepted his Oscar for the song "The High and the Mighty." Following the usual parade of winners who thanked everyone from their hairdressers to their mothers, the composer cracked: "I want to thank my co-workers who made this possible: Bach, Beethoven, Nkazar."

Tiomkin hints that a bit of Tchaikovsky has invaded his many film scores ("Champion," "Lost Horizon," "The Alamo," "The Guns of Navarone," etc.). His repayment is on an epic scale. He is helping the Russians to spend $18 million in filming "Tchaikovsky."

"The filming is going nicely," he reported while here to confer with Warner Brothers-Seven Arts, which is releasing the film on this side of the Iron Curtain.

"We started shooting last June, and I expect the film will be completed next June. It is a big picture, and it requires all four seasons to picture the diversity of Tchaikovsky's music."

"So far the Russians have put up all the money. But we also need sequences in Venice, Florence, Paris and Cambridge, all of which Tchaikovsky visited. Naturally the Russians will not want to spend dollars in Europe, so I suppose Warner Brothers will have to assume the expense."

Tiomkin added that the Russians had no great concern about getting their money back. He pointed out that Tchaikovsky is a great national hero and the Soviet Union has 32,000 movie theaters (vs. 8,000 in the U.S.).

"Besides, the Russians are terribly anxious to have a hit movie in the United States and in Europe," he remarked.

U.S., Peru Relations Near Break

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Relations between the United States and Peru appear headed for a rocky period today in a dispute over the military government's expropriation of the U.S.-owned International Petroleum Co.

Washington has made it clear it would suspend foreign aid and sugar purchases from Peru unless it began "meaningful negotiations" with the company by April, six months after Peru seized the subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey. This is required by the Hickenlooper Amendment.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Proper Fit of Dentures Better Than Adhesives

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I have an upper plate that's 10 years old and I have used adhesive every day of that 10 years. Now I've heard that using denture adhesive over a period of time can be dangerous to one's health. Is this true?—Mrs. F. I.

ANSWER: First it must be said that if dentures fit properly denture adhesives are unnecessary.

Use of adhesives can be a great aid and comfort to denture wearers on special occasions, e.g. when they're new and you're trying to get used to them; or even when you receive the senior low gross golf prize at the annual country club dinner and you have to make an acceptance speech.

But if you have to use that gooey, sticky, mushy stuff every day, many times a day, to keep your denture in place, then you're in trouble. If not because of the adhesive, then because your denture doesn't fit properly. Loose dentures irritate gum tissue, causing redness, swelling, and sometimes bunching up of tissue, especially in front, under the six front teeth.

Denture wearers should be just as concerned about their oral health as those with a full complement of natural teeth. Twice-a-year examination gives your dentist an opportunity to clean your dentures, make adjustments, AND may reveal mouth lesions that if untreated could become cancerous.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: Is it true that whisky is good for hardening the gums? And if so, would wine answer the same purpose?—Mr. J. R.

ANSWER: No. I don't believe that whisky, or even vintage wine, would help toughen the gums. If you rinse your mouth with a cold, dry martini and swallow the excess, and if you do it often enough, you may not toughen your gums, but you'll probably toughen your liver.

Bobcats In 88-70 Loss to Panthers

Kitty Kats End Season With Win

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star SportsWriter

Plagued deeply with foul trouble, the Hope Bobcats could never summon a late comeback and lost an 88-70 decision to the Magnolia Panthers in a 4-AA non-conference game last night at Jones Field House.

It was a rough night for the boys teams, with all three suffering losses to their Magnolia counterparts. Preliminary games saw the Hope "B" Lizards fall to the Magnolia Jayvees 44-39, and the Bobkittens ended a three-game winning streak in a 50-40 defeat to the tough Panther Cubs of Magnolia.

In the "B" game the locals trailed 12-10 at the quarter, before fighting back to a 17-17 deadlock at halftime. Hope lost a five-point lead late in the third period and trailed 31-30 entering the final stanza, before the Panther "B" boys poured in 11 straight points to lead 42-31 with 3:23 to play.

Ronnie Massanelli sacked 10 points to lead the "B" Lizards, Johnny Johnson netted seven, Parker Powell six, and Thomas Norvell five to round out the scoring leaders. Alvin Harris sank nine and David Williamson eight points to pace Magnolia.

The Bobkittens had hoped to crack Magnolia's 22-3 record in the second game, but the Panther Cubs proved too much to handle and lowered the Kittens' season mark to 10-7.

Playing beautiful ball, the Hope juniors leaped into a 12-7 lead after a quarter, but saw Magnolia's shooters undermine that margin and give the Panther Cubs a 26-19 spread by half-time. A dismal third period saw the visitors pull out to an 18-point lead at 40-22, but the grim Hope squad fought back.

Coach Jordan's forces came as close as 43-37 with 3:10 left, before Magnolia used foul shots to run out the final margin of victory. Lynn Norton (10 rebounds, seven assists) led the grading system with a plus 15, Steve Harris had a five and Tim White recorded a four.

These Bobkittens stake it all on the 4-AA District Tournament next week, beginning against Warren on Monday evening at 6:20 p.m. at Arkadelphia.

Last month the Magnolia Panthers overran the Bobcats 102-43, but Hope wouldn't let it happen again last night.

All of 13 first-quarter fouls put the Cats in deep trouble early, and the Panthers grabbed a 27-15 lead at the quarter's end. Using an effective full-court press, Magnolia piled on more and more until it was 45-28 at halftime, when the lead began to wilt.

Suddenly the Bobcats found good success in the middle and driving underneath, and with the final segment to play the difference had dwindled to 63-48. Hope continued to score frequently, but Magnolia got some fine outside shooting to seal the verdict.

All the teams take tonight off from basketball, before the Bobcats and "B" Lizards rejoin the 4-AA West bandwagon next week as the junior boys and senior girls have district tournaments.

There are 10,000 species of fern ranging from delicate, filmy plants less than an inch high to 80-foot tropical giants with palmlike fronds.

Unable to penetrate a fourth-quarter stall, the Hope Lady Cats came out on the short end of a 34-26 tally last night at Willisville, but the Jr. Kitty Cats made it a split by thumped the Willisville juniors 46-40 in the first game.

Besides revenging an earlier 47-38 loss to Willisville in the Blevins Tournament, the win wrapped up the Kitty Cats' 1968-69 season on a fine note, and left the final record a winning season at 7-6.

Forwards Janet McCain and Belinda East took the scoring load and did a good job. Guards Janice Hobson and Cindy Hollis both fouled out, but still Hope would not be denied.

Leading 15-14 after the first quarter, the Kitty Cats kept up the pace and took command 27-22 at intermission. Willisville never made another serious threat before the end, as Hope maintained a 38-29 edge after three periods. Since it was their final game, the juniors' box score is given below.

Stale from a two-week layoff since the Gurdon Invitational, the Lady Cats never could hit their form, and saw their season mark even at 9-9 before the 7-AA District Tournament begins next Wednesday at Gurdon.

Willisville grabbed a quick 12-7 lead entering the second quarter, and slowly increased the lead to 22-13 when the teams went to their dressing rooms at the half.

The third quarter was sloppy and full of turnovers, and though Willisville didn't score a single field goal Hope only managed four points. That kept the Ladies behind 25-17 after three quarters, their stall game to preserve the win.

Dee Singleton totaled 10 points to lead the Lady Cats, followed closely by Sandra Sallee with eight points. Mary Beth Millican was next in line with five, Debbie Powell sank two, and Eva Jo Hale added one. Camp hit 17 points and Marlar 11 to lead Willisville.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The trouble with the drafting of collegiate talent, according to a high authority in Professional Football (since peace came onto the scene, you make that caps), is that they listen too much to the coaches of the 26 teams in Professional Football.

Take the recent pro draft on the second floor of the Belmont Plaza where, between rounds, you can stuff yourself with apple strudel and gawk at Professional Football secretaries (who look draftable, too.) At 15-minute intervals, the 26 teams designated their choices of the first round, with a deliberation that indicated the coaches had examined every aspect of their future chattel, including their bicuspid.

Well, when it came to the 13th pick of the day, the New York Giants selected a young man named Fred Dryer of San Diego State.

Immediate consternation flooded various offices in New York. In the CBS Building at West 52nd Street, on the 26th floor housing sports, and often considered an adjunct to the National Football League, the expressions were incredulous.

"Fred Dryer? Are you sure that's not Dwyer? Or Dyer?" "You ever heard of him?" "What's he play?"

"I hear he's a defensive end. Supposed to be 6-2 and 220. They gotta mean linebacker." "Wait'll I call Ken Avery. Allie (Coach Allie Sherman) just told him yesterday his performance last season was off 30 per cent."

Avery is an incumbent linebacker for the Giants. Word soon flits further west on 52nd Street, to Mike Manuche's Restaurant, of the new draftee.

"Fred Dwyer?" asks Mike. "Oh, Dryer? What school? You gotta be putting me on."

Back at the site of the draft, though, there's reassuring word.

"The Cowboys had him as the 14th best player in the country."

"The 49ers and Rams had him high."

"They got themselves a great athlete."

But no one ever heard of him. Four hours after he was drafted, the question of how he spelled his name came up.

"It's Dryer," insisted a Giant spokesman. "He wrote it that way himself."

He's also not 6-2 and 220. He's 6-5 and 235 and he's verily a defensive end. "Going to be 245," Allie Sherman projected. "Could give us the pass rush we need."

But still no one ever heard of him. He didn't make SI's list of super-draftables. Nor any All-American teams. And the Giants, in the wake of the neighboring Jets' Super Bowl success, badly need glamor and imagery that only an All-American can provide. The heck with what the coach needs.

Now the draft got around to the final pick of the first round, the 26th, belonging to the New York Jets, champions of the world. What a chance for a coup. Still available for the plucking was a name who could knock the Giants out of the box, propaganda-wise, like Joe Namath had done four years before.

The name was Terry Hanratty. All-American quarterback. Notre Dame. Irish. Even had a bad knee, like Namath. And from western Pennsylvania, like Namath.

Broadway Joe's knee could go on him every time. He's already talking retirement and show biz. Babe Parilli, his stand-in, is 38 going on 40. Hanratty's security for the future—and a counter to future money demands by Namath. The Jets, who already own more than half of New York, could drive the stake further.

The announcement on the loudspeaker blares: "The New York Jets draft Dave Foley, offensive tackle, Ohio State."

Dave Foley? With an "e"? Weeb Ewbank says he's the best athlete still available.

"That's what happens," says the High Authority of PF, "when coaches decide who's to be drafted."

The Unusual Maraviches

NEW YORK—(NEA)—

"It's the strangest relationship I've ever seen," said Bobby Roberts, Clemson basketball coach. "The way they argue! They hardly ever agree on anything. But, evidently, it has paid off."

Roberts was discussing the was walking onto the court and turned his head and said, 'Don't sweat it, coach.'

Press acknowledges that harmony is missing at times from their relationship. "You know how sons are," he said. "They get pretty independent-minded. They don't always listen to their fathers. Sometimes I tell one of my assistants what I want Pete to do. They tell him, 'And Pete comes to me and says, inflammable coexistence of Press Maravich and his son, Pete. Press is the basketball coach at Louisiana State University and Pete is his All-American guard, and the nation's leading scorer.

Press and Pete Maravich

When Press was a head coach at North Carolina State, Roberts was his assistant and Pete was a little kid who used to dribble a basketball to the movies.

"I remember," said Roberts, "when Press would want Pete to practice his free-throw shooting. Press would challenge him to a contest, and would usually win. Pete would end up crying. Real tears. He'd cry for anything."

"Press would be helping him with a math problem and they'd start arguing about that. Press would say, 'Now, look! There is only one way to do math.'"

Roberts recalled a time when Pete, in the ninth grade, saved up money to buy an air rifle. Press drove him to town to get it.

"Press had an old '53 Buick that drove like a truck. Traffic was heavy this Saturday afternoon. And Press was trying to parallel park his car with horns blowing all over the place. Pete got out and slapped his pocket. He had forgotten his money at home."

"We drove back for the money and the whole time Press is really chewing him out. Pete is in the back seat bawling like a baby. I said, 'Gee whiz. Press, get off the kid.' And Press said, 'You keep out of this argument.'"

On the court Pete had always called Press "Dad," until a game last year against Georgia. "Press told me about it," said Roberts.

"LSC was up by a point with seven seconds left in the game. Pete had a one-and-one at the free throw line. There was a timeout. Press told him to bear down, that this was important. Pete

"Dad, I think I've corrected that hitch in my jump shot."

"One thing about Pete, he wants to win at any cost. I remember when he was five years old. We'd play monopoly and when he was stuck in a corner, he'd cry that the dice was fixed. We used to play HORSE or 21 when he was in high school. I had a behind-the-back shot that I used when I was in trouble. He'd scream that it was unfair. And when I was about to shoot he would stick out his tongue, make funny faces, jump up and down. Anything to win. He's like Adolph Hitler in that respect."

"Couple weeks ago I told Pete to help his four-year-old sister, Donna, drink her milk. I told him to race her and let her win."

"When they got down to the bottom, Pete gulped his first."

Pete, said Press, takes a loss so hard it is two or three days before they return to speaking terms.

"There have been times," said Pete, "when we didn't see eye-to-eye on the court. During one timeout last season, he wanted to run a certain play. I opened my big mouth to disagree. He said, 'Dammit, I'm coach here and don't you forget it.' Then he swatted me across the back of the head."

"I quit giving him advice on the court. I don't think he appreciates it."

Tracy's Back

KANSAS CITY—(NEA)—

Tracy Stallard, who served up Roger Maris' 61st home run when he was pitching for the Boston Red Sox, will attempt a baseball comeback this season.

Stallard will get a tryout from the Kansas City Royals in spring training, ending a one-year "retirement." His famous home run pitch to Maris came in 1961 at Yankee Stadium.

Ira Berkow

NEA Sports Columnist

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There are times when even the finest publicist teeters on the brink of running out of superlatives. This happened recently with Joey Goldstein, the United States Trotting Association's ambulatory megaphone.

"Billy Houghton," he wrote in a press release, "is no ordinary great harness racing driver. He is extraordinarily great."

With that, Joey toppled over the edge.

In defense, though, it would seem that sufficient adjectives do become scarce when Billy Houghton is the noun. Houghton has won more money and more races than any driver in trotting history.

Shortly, he will ride his 3,000th winner. Only eight other drivers have ever won 2,000. In harness circles, this makes Houghton the Babe Ruth, the Gordie Howe, the—well, Joey could take it from there.

Houghton also has won over $13 million in his 27 years of competition. A fact like that might drive even J. Paul Getty to buy a sulky.

But money, for Houghton, just seems to go in one ear and out the other.

"I don't think about it much," said Houghton. "It doesn't make me feel particularly good. My satisfaction comes in winning a race. For me, it's equal to, say, Joe Namath throwing a touchdown pass."

"There have been times, after I've won a big stakes race, that someone'll say, 'Boy, Billy, you sure won a lot of dough.' And I'll ask: 'How much was it? I never did look to see.'"

The time was when a purse had meaning for Houghton. He began his riding career as a thoroughbred jockey, atop outlaw horses and against outlaw jockeys. He would go from county fair to county fair in New York, in towns like Nassau, Chatham, Altamont, Ballston Spa, Ponda and Cobleskill, hoping for the winner's share of a $75 purse.

"Some of those horses were broken-down mares that were ruled off the big tracks," he said. "Some of the jocks had been ruled off the tracks, too. It was catch as catch can. Those were the days when I wanted to be a jockey. But they didn't last long." Houghton began riding at 16, in 1939. He weighed 125 pounds. His fondness for runners was equaled by his fondness for dinners. So he turned to the sulky. He now stands 5-9 and weighs 152, without his wallet.

Nineteen-forty-nine was Houghton's first big year as a money-winner on the harness-racing circuit. He won 77 races and $114,606. Both figures continued upward, year after green year. Nine times he has won over $1 million in a season.

Like most harness drivers, he also trains horses. He has the largest stable in the business, with 150 "mute quadruped athletes," as Joey Goldstein describes them. Many of his horses are yearlings and two-year-olds. They are often temperamental.

"Remember," said Joey, "they are athletes but they are also babies."

As earnings increase for Houghton, so do expenses. At his stable in Orlando, Fla., Houghton has two bookkeepers who tabulate checks totalling about $10,000 a week to some 80 grooms and 10 assistant trainers.

In the stable he has seven season champions, including Laverne Hanover, the two-year-old pacing colt of last year, and Carlisle, the top age-trotter of 1968.

All this because Houghton, when a teen-ager, used to ask for seconds.

Needed: 40 Winks

For all the claims about our high form of civilization in this country, we've actively discouraged one of the most civilized customs of all: the afternoon nap, or siesta.

We're reminded of this every morning, when we pledge to retire ever earlier at night. We do this, knowing full well that by nightfall the sleepiness of morning will somehow slip down into the realm of the subconscious, to wait until the following morning to reappear. We pledge this every afternoon, following lunch when drowsiness once more creeps up to the surface — and like bulldozers we shake it off and push onward, toward dinnertime.

Those who criticize countries whose citizens indulge in a little afternoon nappery are wont to point out that conditions in those places are terrible. There are holes in the roads, the water is bad, there are constant revolutions and so forth. To this we can say that here, too, there are many undisciplined streets, that pollution is making the water worse, and that if we don't exactly have revolutions we do have the next worst thing.

We persevere, red-eyed and yawning, through the day and then go home and snap at our spouses. We haunt the office coffee machine and consume enough caffeine to keep an army of truck drivers continuously crisscrossing the country. A pile of crushed cigarettes marks our progress from sluggish morning into weary sunset. While we labor and fret and refrain from snoozing in the stock room people across the water snore contentedly, blissful in their slovenliness and better off for it.

Such is the penalty we have paid for progress. No wonder the aspirin business is booming. — Savannah (Ga.) Morning News.

Breakfast in Biafra Gift of World

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — Sister Mary Thomas' breakfast guests begin arriving before dawn.

More than 2,000 of them make lines up and down the field. Most are children, squatting on their haunches, tapping out subdued rhythms on chipped bowls and empty sardine cans. Their colorfully robed mothers and silent fathers stand behind, many of the women balancing a baby on the hip.

Sister Mary's helpers come out with three-foot-deep kettles, and the tapping quickens.

The aging nun from Ireland's County Cork walks briskly up, a broad-lipped metal spoon in her right hand, a wooden spatula in her left. She dips deep into the mixture and begins filling the bowls and the cans.

Little fingers plunge into the bowls, dip and lick, dip and lick. "Ah, a great food this is," the smiling nun remarks.

It contains cornmeal, soybean and milk powder and comes from the United States.

"We add powdered egg, oil and stockfish," said Sister Mary. "They like it better than their own garri and what a world of good for them it does."

The base, known as Formula Two, has been donated to relief agencies in huge quantities recently by the U.S. government.

Sister Mary's feeding center is one of the largest of more than 1,500 set up in Biafra by relief organizations to aid many thousands of those displaced by the 18-month Nigerian civil war.

It provides one meal a day, breakfast and the meal possibly is the most wholesome in Biafra.

The Red Cross, and Roman Catholic and Protestant relief organizations are now giving out 3 million high protein meals a week. Relief officials agree that the dreaded protein deficiency disease—kwashiorkor—has nearly been beaten, at least among the children.

Six months ago, children with bloated stomachs, gray skin and reddish hair—the signs of kwashiorkor—could be seen in great numbers anywhere in Biafra. Many centers like Sister Mary's did not exist then.

$50,000 Load of Liquor Is Seized

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP)—A couple from Las Vegas, Nev., were scheduled to appear in Municipal Court here Wednesday on charges of possessing untaxed liquor, transporting liquor without a permit and illegal possession of a narcotic.

Sheriff Clarence Montgomery of St. Francis County identified the couple as Stankey Stankey, 37, and his wife, Florence. They were being held in lieu of $5,500 bond.

The discovery of $50,000 worth of untaxed liquor in a truck came by chance when Orval Evans of the state Commerce Department stopped the truck in Forrest City Wednesday night to make a routine inspection. Stankey said he was hauling fish. Evans said he almost let the truck pass, since only breaded fish must be checked and registered before it can be hauled through the state.

Harris Smith, the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board agent at West Memphis, said the truck was registered to a party in Van Nuys, Calif., but that Stankey, following his arrest, made several calls to Arizona.

Stankey said the liquor had been bought in Phoenix, Ariz., by Pierce Distributing Co. of Phoenix, Smith said. The liquor was bought from Hiram Walker Distilleries of Peoria, Ill., where it was picked up by Stankey, officers said.

Smith said Stankey told him he believed Pierce Distributing Co. had paid for the liquor in Phoenix and that it was being delivered to Phoenix.

Italian Wants Nordic Title

NEW YORK (AP) — What red-blooded Italian-American would sponsor an honor for the Norwegian rival of Christopher Columbus for the title of discoverer of America?

Angelo J. Arculeo, the City Council minority leader, that's who. But the Italian-American councilman is quick to insist that he still believes that Columbus, an Italian, was the first to discover America in 1492.

The City Council's committee on parks and thoroughfares today considers Arculeo's proposal to change the name of the city portion of Shore Parkway to Left Ericson Drive.

Arculeo explained he proposed the local name change only because the state legislature has already renamed the parkway Left Ericson Drive. His bill would speed changing of the signs.

Hundreds Die in Biafra Bombing

UMUOHIA, Biafra (AP) — A crowded open market in this Biafran village was bombed and strafed Thursday, causing what may be one of the worst civilian casualty tolls of the Nigerian civil war.

Local officials estimated that between 200 and 300 persons were killed outright and hundreds more wounded.

Five hours after the noon raid, sturdy youths followed by walling relatives were still carrying the dead along dusty trails in the bush to their homes.

More 'Revolution' and Less 'American' the DAR Discovers

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

When it comes to patriotic organizations, the Daughters of the American Revolution is among the foremost. Each year during February, American History Month, this dedicated group strives to tell its fellow citizens about this great land in which we live and of the legacy left us by our founding fathers.

Each year the task grows more difficult, for more and more emphasis seems to be placed on "Revolution" and less on "American" by too many in our land. In the DAR magazine for April 1968, it was pointed out that we are now experiencing an era of revolt in America that has nothing to do with "patriots fighting for their lives to establish a free nation in which men would enjoy true liberty and freedom from oppression — but a revolution which might destroy those very advantages for which our forefathers fought."

This revolution in America is still going on in four forms — scientific, economic, religious, and social. Of these forms, the scientific revolution seems to be the most advantageous with its era of the computer, nuclear power, and advancements in medical science. We have literally shot for the moon — and made it. There are unpleasant aspects such as monumental expense, but this revolution, nevertheless, gives hope of a brighter day.

We can't say many good things about the other three forms of our current revolution: economic — altering our fiscal system which demands greater centralized government; religious — the heritage we want to keep alive for future generations? It is to express unashamedly our love of our country — with steadfast devotion to the ideals upon which this Republic was founded — a Nation under God.

Negro School Man Loses in Court

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge J. Smith Henley Thursday dismissed a complaint by a former school principal who contended he was demoted from principal and later dismissed because of his race.

Eddie D. Brown, 58, of Searcy, a Negro and principal of Nelson School at Scott in Pulaski County from September 1964 through June 1966, filed the complaint.

Henley said that Brown's demotion and subsequent dismissal by the Pulaski County (rural) School Board "did not amount to constitutionally prohibited discrimination against the plaintiff."

At the end of the 1966 school term, the upper six grades of Nelson were abolished and the students transferred either to the all-Negro Harris High School or the previously all-white Scott High School.

Brown was retained as a truancy officer. His contract expired June 30, 1967, and was not renewed by the board. Brown sought reinstatement as principal, back pay and $15,000 damages.

Turning our people away from a faith in God; social — expressing itself in social misbehavior and contempt for sobriety and restraints of our long-established social order.

Some people have the misconception that freedom means the abolition of responsibility or a regard for the rights of others. Our youth should not be blamed entirely for this idea. Rather, the fault is more apt to be the result of the absence of earlier training in moral and patriotic virtues for responsible citizenship and the subsequent respect for the rights of others.

The DAR magazine acknowledged that every citizen has the right to disagree with any policy of the government; the objection was to committing acts to disrupt the nation's military effort or to give aid and comfort to the enemy. It stated: "If Americans would spend as much time concentrating on their present liberties, freedoms and opportunities, as they do on criticism, dissent and rebellion against the existing order, they would soon find that the road to success and happiness is right at their feet — ready and waiting."

What is true patriotism, the heritage we want to keep alive for future generations? It is to express unashamedly our love of our country — with steadfast devotion to the ideals upon which this Republic was founded — a Nation under God.

13-Year-Old Acquitted of Murder

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — After spending weeks in a jail cell facing the possibility of going to the electric chair, 13-year-old Robert Curtis went home Thursday night with his father and mother.

He was free. An Orange County circuit court jury of seven women and five men deliberated for an hour and 45 minutes before finding Robert innocent in the rifle killing of a 15-year-old playmate.

When Foreman Edward Parker read the verdict, Robert smiled for the first time during the two-day trial. Parker also was smiling as they shook hands.

Robert was charged with the death of James Thompson, 15, who was killed last Sept. 9 when he was shot in the eye at Robert's family apartment.

The state maintained the shooting was intentional. Robert's defense was that he was putting the rifle away when it discharged accidentally.

In his final summation, Prosecutor Robert Eagan asked the jury to bypass a first degree verdict in favor of second degree or manslaughter.

When the verdict came in, Robert's mother screamed for joy. She and her husband hugged the boy. All three wept. "Are we going home, Mama?" the boy asked his mother as the three stood hunched in the courtroom.

Pueblo Trial Lacks Many Answers

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — When North Korean gunboats first threatened to fire on the USS Pueblo a year ago, she was carrying a reported 600 pounds of secret papers and equipment. When she was seized, about two hours later, the boarding party found some of this intact.

"Whose responsibility is it to see that a ship does not obtain more material than it is able to destroy in a short period?" an admiral on the court of inquiry into the capture asked a Pentagon expert Friday.

"It is the responsibility of the commanding officer... plus to see that he has adequate destruction capabilities aboard," replied Capt. John B. Williams, who was testifying for the chief of naval operations as a specialist in destruction of classified material.

"I believe we all understand that the ultimate responsibility for everything on his ship is the commanding officer's," replied Rear Adm. R.R. Pratt. "But who has the responsibility to see that the commanding officer isn't given an unreasonable task in this regard?"

A. "There is no central agency."

Q. "At the time of the Pueblo was there any system or individual?"

A. "There was an operations order to the commander of Naval Forces Japan for an inspection of each environmental research ship before it goes out on each mission to determine whether it's planning for emergency destruction is feasible and if the means exist."

The commander of Naval Forces in Japan when the Pueblo was captured was Rear Adm. Frank L. Johnson. During his testimony early in the hearing he said his staff gave the Pueblo's destruct capabilities an "informal inspection."

Later, Rear Adm. George Cassell, who was assistant chief of staff for operations for the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet at the time, testified he didn't think Johnson's office carried out its responsibilities in this regard.

Drug Firms Offer a Settlement

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell said Thursday that he has received an offer from five drug companies to settle his suit against them for alleged price fixing.

Purcell said, however, that a formula for the settlement has not been determined.

About 23 other states have filed charges against the five companies. The firms are Chas. Pfizer and Co., American Cyanamid Co., Bristol-Myers Co., Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., and the Upjohn Co.

The five companies agreed Thursday to pay $120 million to settle civil suits charging that they had rigged the price of tetracycline, an antibiotic, during the 1950s.

Veep's Name Is Agnew, Isn't It?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew admits his name still is not a household word—even around the White House.

But he says things have improved since a sampling of "indolent sunbathers" in Miami Beach after the Republican convention last summer produced agreement that a Spiro Agnew was "a component of a space satellite."

Two days ago, Agnew told a luncheon of students and senators Wednesday, a reporter called the White House and asked for Mr. Thompson in Mr. Agnew's office. Herb Thompson, formerly Agnew's press aide, now works for communications director Herbert G. Klein.

How do you spell that? Agnew quoted the White House operator as asking.

"H-O-M-E-S-O-N," replied the reporter.

"No," the operator responded. "How do you spell Agnew?"

Says Fog Is Disappearing

LONDON (AP) — The London fog is disappearing, an expert said today, but the metropolis is getting noisier.

Dr. Basil Brown, scientific adviser to the Greater London Council, said in a report to the chief municipal authority that banning of coal fires from "smokeless zones" has made the city's traditional fog shroud a rarity.

The scientist also reported increasing control of sewage and industrial waste disposal has brought fish back to the Thames.

But Brown said increasing night flights into London airport and a general rise in road traffic have made the city noisier.

Ed Kennedy Democratic '72 Hope

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is at this time considered the "most likely" Democratic presidential nominee in 1972 by almost all Democratic party leaders, the Christian Science Monitor said today.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine is second, running far behind Kennedy, the Monitor said. Democratic leaders polled across the United States stressed, however, that their assessment was based on the current situation and that "many things may happen."

To put himself in a position to challenge Kennedy, the Monitor reported, Muskie will have to "make an all-out effort."

Kennedy is considered the most likely nominee in almost all regions including all southern states but Florida, South Carolina and Georgia. Muskie is the most likely choice for 1972 in Maine, Florida, South Carolina and Washington. Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was the most likely choice in Colorado, Idaho and Pennsylvania.

California Oil Disaster Stirs British

By GLENN GOODEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The super tanker Torrey Canyon crunched onto the Seven Stones Rocks off Southwest England nearly two years ago, sending millions of gallons of crude oil toward the beaches of Britain and France.

The mess was cleaned up long ago but it will be years before the legal wrangling over the bills ends.

The oil leak off Santa Barbara, Calif., which is smothering miles of beautiful beaches with oil, recalls the Torrey Canyon disaster, which on March 18, 1967, spilled oil onto 120 miles of Cornwall's golden sands.

The wreck of the 61,263-ton tanker was the most costly in merchant marine history. The ship and her cargo of 35 million gallons of crude oil were valued at $18 million. Clearing the oil alone cost the British $7.2 million.

A law suit to recover the cleaning bill was brought by the British government against the Barracuda Tanker Corp., the Union Oil subsidiary that owned the ship. The case, comes to trial in Singapore in September. British officials say the action could take years.

France has a lawsuit pending against the company in Rotterdam. More than 40 miles of Brittany beaches were coated with the Torrey Canyon's oil, but they were quickly cleared.

This City Does Have Problems

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — What do you do about the April city election in Wellford, Kan.?

The city has 11 eligible voters. Two are away in military service. Two are away on construction jobs. Two are in rest homes. That leaves five.

And five voters are required to man the election board and remain on duty 12 hours.

The city by law must elect a mayor and five council members. But as of today the ballot will contain only blank lines.

Carrier Loss No Hamper to Bombing

By GEORGE ESPEY
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. 7th Fleet is operating with four instead of five aircraft carriers but informed sources said today this has not affected the intensity of bombing raids on enemy supply lines in Laos.

The fleet had five attack carriers until last month when the Constellation returned to the United States. The nuclear-powered Enterprise was en route to replace the Constellation when explosions ripped through the ship during a bombing exercise and put her out of action for an estimated three months.

The bombing of Laos is a key issue in the war. The Soviet Union warned last week that continued bombing of Laos could hamper the Paris peace talks and cause a spread in the Vietnam war. The U.S. State Department replied that the presence of North Vietnamese troops in Laos violated the 1962 Laotian neutrality agreement and was the cause of the raids.

The 7th Fleet has three carriers in the Tonkin Gulf and South China Sea from which air raids are launched against enemy positions in South Vietnam and Laos. They are the Hancock, Kitty Hawk and Coral Sea.

The fourth carrier is "in the envelope," meaning its identification is classified because it is moving to or from another station.

Vice Adm. William F. Bringle, commander of the 7th Fleet, declined comment on the reduction in strength except to say: "With the kind of dedicated and committed young Americans we have manning our ships, we will continue to meet operational requirements in the western Pacific."

But an informed source said: "Even with less carriers we are maintaining the intensity of our strikes over Laos by flying harder and taking fewer breaks from the war."

The U.S. Command announced today enemy gunners shot down three American aircraft—a Marine F4 Phantom jet, a helicopter carrying South Korean troops into battle and another chopper lifting wounded U.S. Marines out of battle. Seven Americans and six Koreans were killed and five Americans were wounded.

The command said U.S. helicopter losses in the eight-year war now total 2,354 and fixed-wing aircraft losses 2,545.

U.S. headquarters also reported that two unarmed American civilians were killed and a third was seriously wounded when their Jeep was ambushed at dawn today on a main highway 19 miles northeast of Saigon.

A U.S. spokesman said the civilians were employees of a U.S. firm under contract to the Army. He did not identify them.

South Vietnamese military headquarters announced two terrorist incidents in which 22 civilians were reported killed and 47 others wounded Friday.

In one a bus ran over a mine on a secondary road 240 miles northeast of Saigon, killing 14 civilians and wounding 14 others. Fifty miles to the north, a Viet Cong-detonated mine or hand grenade went off in a market place near a district town killing eight civilians and wounding 30, a spokesman said.

The lull in ground fighting continued as military spokesmen reported no major ground fighting today.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported government soldiers killed 43 Viet Cong soldiers, captured 21 prisoners and freed 30 civilians held by the enemy during a combat sweep in the Mekong Delta 85 miles southwest of Saigon Friday.

Police in Saigon today announced the arrest of a Viet Cong "suicide squad" intent on blowing up military planes parked at the sprawling Tan Son Nhut airport on the edge of the capital.

The police also said they had foiled plans for an attack on national police headquarters in Saigon.
